Senate completed 4-6 Rodney Street for the part relocation of the Liverpool Business School, which opened in September 2018 to students.

The project involved the extensive refurbishment of two listed Georgian buildings to create a student hub and business space befitting of this leading 21st century business school, whilst retaining the classical design, through sensitive restoration of the existing period features.

The architectural style and interior detail showcases the fascinating history of these buildings, combining historical details and craftsmanship with modern features complimenting the existing, this made it a truly unique renovation for the project team.

“

This is an exciting development in the next phase of the Liverpool Business School and firmly roots us in the heart of this historic quarter of the city. The University headquarters has had a presence in Rodney Street for over 30 years and it is certainly fitting that the creation of this new Management Development Centre for our professional and corporate clients will sit alongside our existing executive offices.
